Mr. and Mrs. Reid were waiting for their guests on the platform. First to appear from the private car was Princess Patricia. Mrs. Reid, who was seated in the box, bowed ceremoniously. The Princess, who checked and smiling, shook hands with her hosts. Then the Duchess stepped on the platform and was greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Reid. After a short interval the Duke appeared, bowed in response to Mrs. Reid's courtesy and Mr. Reid's bow and then clasped hands with both.

DUKE'S BEARING THAT OF A SOLDIER.
The Duke of Connaught's morning dress was brown, single-breasted, over which he wore a broadcloth overcoat, trimmed with seal, a derby on his head, and English side hat, pattern leather shoes and light spurs. Of somewhat spare figure and above medium height, the Duke carried himself with the manner of a soldier, dignified and alert. He looked to be less than 40 years of age and his hair, which was dark, was combed back. His face is highly colored, when accentuated by the whiteness of his military mustaches. His eyes are light and his nose is straight. He has a slight smile on his face, but his expression is serious. He has not one of the features of the late Edward VII.

limousine, carried long enough to get his coat to port. The procession of autos and carriages continued through the afternoon. It produced an interesting situation in the chrome-plated driveway. Autos that were waiting constantly at the convenience of the royal party were required to move in circles, so as to make room for the approaching stream of autos bearing people to leave cars.

to the wing of decorative arts, where under the skillful guidance and ready description of Director Robinson and Dr. Valentiner they enjoyed the wealth of tapestries, carvings, clock shells and room furniture, including a valuable collection that was provided by J. P. Morgan and whose value, if it can be so measured, is more than $1,000,000.

From Lord Mies, Baron de Hohenhausen, collection of jewels displayed in vitrines and then to the collection of Chinese porcelains, a combination of the collections made by James A. Garfield and Marshall C. Perry. Finally they came to the galleries of paintings, and here one notable portrait seemed to them most interesting. It is the Van Dyck, "Portrait of James Stuart, Duke of Richmond," in the Marquand collection. The Duke and Princess Patricia returned to the Van Dyck gallery, where they were waiting for their hosts after leaving the galleries and the Princess was heard to remark that it was quite the most wonderful work she had seen.

JADE WINE SET $6,700; GRIGSBY SALE FEATURE.
M. Mustin Pays Sum After Lively Bidding—Experts Disagree on Value.
TOTAL FOR DAY IS $30,958

Spirited Rivalry for Art Articles Marks Both Afternoon and Evening Session.
A stir was made last night at the sale of the Emile Grigsby collection in the Anderson galleries, when five jade wine cups and a tray brought $6,700. The purchase was made by M. Mustin, who was bidding against the house. Major Turner of the auction company stopped the house representative from bidding, of the miniature jade set might have brought even a higher price. Major Turner refused to tell for whom the bids were being made. He said they had been instructed to buy the jade, and although no limit had been set he thought it was wise to stop.

MANILA DEMOCRATS SPLIT.
Delegation to Baltimore in a Wrangle Over Island Administration.
Special Cable Telegram to THE SUN.
MANILA, Jan. 22.—As a result of the democratic primary elections for the selection of delegates to a national convention at Baltimore it is likely that the local convention will be split on the question of the American administration in the islands.

One section of the delegates will oppose the adoption of a plank criticizing the Administration, while the other section will insist upon such a plank.

NOTHING TO APPEAL.
Wickersham Tells Why He Didn't Carry Up the Tobacco Case.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Attorney-General Wickersham devoted two hours today to explaining to the Senate committee on Judiciary why he did not appeal from the decision of the Circuit Court for the Southern district of New York affirming the reorganization plan of the American Tobacco Company. The Attorney-General took all the responsibility for failure to appeal the case. In this he practically absolved President Taft from having interfered in any way in directing the Government's action in the case.

The Attorney-General said that he did not appeal the case because he felt there was nothing on which to base an appeal. He explained the opinion that the plan of reorganization complied with the decree of the United States Supreme Court and that its effect would be to restore competitive conditions.

Mr. Wickersham was invited to appear before the committee as the result of discussion growing out of the consideration of a bill introduced by Senator Cummings of Iowa, which is pending in the Judiciary Committee. This bill provides that the Lead Tobacco Board of Trade of New York and other so-called independent shippers have the right to intervene in the dissolution proceeding and that an appeal shall be granted to the Supreme Court either upon the application of the Government or the intervening interests.

In presenting the bill Senator Cummings said that his principal object was to bring about a review of the dissolution plan by the Supreme Court. He said that the bill was introduced because he believed that the plan of reorganization was unconstitutional and that it would confer original jurisdiction on the Supreme Court.

In the two hours that Mr. Wickersham was before the committee he discussed every phase of the tobacco company case. He was asked with questions by members of the committee. The questions suggested that probably a majority of the members of the Judiciary Committee believe that an appeal should be taken, but it is doubtful whether a majority of the committee believe there is any legal way to reach an appeal.

The subject will be taken up at the regular meeting Monday.

EMBASSY BUILDINGS ABROAD.
Mr. Knox Says They Cannot Be Built for $150,000, the Limit Fixed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Secretary of State Knox reported to Congress today that it would be impossible for the United States to purchase or build embassies and legations in the principal capitals of the Old World within the limit of $150,000 for each structure, which is fixed by the bill passed at the last session of the Sixty-first Congress. This measure authorizes the expenditure of $500,000 a year, but declares that no building shall cost more than $150,000.

Secretary Knox recommends the purchase or construction of buildings for the embassies at Mexico city and Tokyo. The United States already owns a piece of ground at Tokyo, upon which it is proposed to construct the embassy headquarters.

Secretary Knox says his conclusion is that the United States will not be able to acquire suitable buildings within the $150,000 limit at foreign capitals is based on a general inquiry made under his direction.

ROW IN GRAND JURY ROOM?
Apparent Hic in the Investigation of Richmond Borough Affairs.

District Attorney Fack of Richmond county reported to Supreme Court Justice Clark in the court house at Richmond last Friday that the Grand Jury, against Fack's advice, had decided to investigate the official conduct of borough officers. Justice Clark then talked to the Grand Jury for about fifteen minutes, telling them that they should investigate only on a basis of reasonable information, but declining to instruct them in either way.

FROM QUAKER CITY IN FLIER'S WATER TANK.
Last Stage of Barrow's Episodic Journey Up From the Sunny South.

MANY SAW HIS HEAD ZIP BY.
But None Had Authority to Stop the Eighteen Hour Special From Chicago.

The Florida East Coast Railway being finished, William Barrow, ironworker, was paid off last week. On Thursday night, his money being spent, Barrow was ready to start for his home at 181 North Eighth street, Brooklyn, as a guest of any railroad that would receive him ticketless.

Young Mr. Barrow, who is 20 years old, rode out of Jacksonville on the rods beneath a passenger coach. He had traversed a good many miles toward the north when a crane-man intended fixed him with an unfriendly beam and he was dragged forth half frozen to be warmed and fed in a police station. The police let him go and Barrow resumed his tour, this time under an engine tender. Again he rode peacefully for several hours before he was dumped. Again the southern town into which he was propelled was kind. Food was given him and a new coat.

The episodic journey was continued. Here and there Barrow was thrust from a train, only to swing himself aboard of the next one that came along. Yesterday morning he swooped proudly into Philadelphia standing on the step of a tender. Inquiring as to trains to New York he decided that the eighteen hour special from Chicago to New York would bring him to Brooklyn in time for supper with the folks. He mounted the tender of that train and rode to New York.

The lid of the tank was closed. About the time the express got into New Jersey the man in the tank found himself snoring. He pushed the lid up, but his arms were too numb from cold to keep it up, so he stuck his head out of the hole and looked about. He saw a train, but he was too tired to get up. FALL KILLS AVIATOR AS THOUSANDS LOOK ON Rutherford Page of New York Loses Control of Machine at Los Angeles.

DROPS FROM 150 FEET UP
Skull Crushed and Body Broken. He Dies in Field Hospital Without Regaining Consciousness.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 22.—Rutherford Page of New York, an aviator, fell from a height of 150 feet at Dominguez field at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Page alighted within a few hundred feet of the hangars in full sight of the thousands of spectators in the stands. First aid was given in front of the grand stand, while thousands stood silent and awaited the verdict of the doctors.

He was taken to the field hospital, but died just as he arrived there.

Page was 25 years old. He came to Los Angeles from New York. He got his pilot license at Dayton, Ohio, less than a month ago.

Page had left his hangar to ascend for an altitude flight. He had ascended only 50 feet when it became evident that he had lost control of his machine.

Suddenly the craft turned turtle and hurtled eastward. At an elevation of 150 feet it seemed to stop and hover, then it shot to the ground at sickening speed.

Mechanics and attendants ran to the fallen flier. The first doctor who reached him said that life was not spent, and he was hurried to a field hospital, where he died at 4:30 o'clock.

Page's skull was crushed and his body was fearfully battered. He did not regain consciousness after he struck the earth.

Rutherford Page, who was graduated from Yale in 1910, lived at 37 East Thirtieth street with his brother, Frank Page, who was graduated from Yale in 1908, and two sisters, Miss Laura L. Page, who is a member of the Colony Club, and Miss Sylvia Page. He was a member of the Yale Club.

The great business of Library Bureau in cards, filing cabinets and supplies is accounted for by its splendid factory facilities, the quality of its product and the personal interest in the distribution of its goods. It operates its own factories in Cambridge (Mass.), Ilion (N.Y.), Chicago, Ottawa, and New York City. A visit to the store will demonstrate the variety and quality of the goods. Catalogues will be sent on application.
